Brinkman Hires Director of Human Resources and Talent Management

Fort Collins, Colo., February 2, 2018: As part of their key growth plan, Fort Collins-based companies, Brinkman and Brinkman Construction have hired Dan Miller as Director of Human Resources and Talent Development. Miller will lead the Human Resources department in planning, implementing, and evaluating the human resource function and performance of the company, as well as developing strategic programs for employees' professional growth plans.

A recent Colorado transplant, Miller has over a decade of human resources and talent development experience. Most recently, he served as the Senior Director of Human Resources for a multibillion-dollar commercial construction, real estate development and management, and capital markets firm in Minneapolis. There, he led performance management, employee relations, recruiting, and career development. His true passion lies with human resources where he can work with people and help them discover their potential.

"We are so thrilled to welcome Dan as one of the newest members of our team," said Chief Operations Officer/Chief Financial Officer, Jane Everhart. "His expertise, strategies, and passion are integral to helping our team discover their full potential."

"I knew Brinkman and Brinkman Construction were the right companies for me when I read their core values," said Miller. "I'm so proud to be a part of making positive impacts on my new community and home here in Colorado."

Miller holds a Bachelor's degree in Business Administration from Sacred Heart University in Connecticut and a Master's degree in Human Resource Management from St. Mary's University of Minnesota. He is a member of the Society for Human Resources Management and has a long history of community involvement.
